GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS ON HOW TO HANDLE FLORIDA TROPICALS -

MOLLIENESIA LATTIPINA - These fish are large fish and naturally require more oxygen and cool aquariums. On arrival of a can of these fish, it is best to put in a handful of salt to every twenty (20) gallons of water into the aquarium that these fish will be put. In this way, you will save all your fish. Should you try to crowd them, you will find that they will die from many causes. Mollienesias are good feeders, but be careful and see to it that they eat everything, as they very seldom eat food that falls to the bottom. Plenty of room, cool aquarium and a salt bath once in a while is the best for these fish.

On all other Florida fish, add about three teaspoonfuls of salt to every twenty (20) gallons of water when transferring them from can to aquarium.
